The Deanery, Lincoln.
14th November, 1912.

Dear Mr. Eversole,

Draw your twenty per cent last year of course as soon as it is allotted, just as you like. I am sorry I didn't mention it. I thought it was understood.

It is very cold here, and I am inclined to think we shall have a cold Winter everywhere. I hope Frank will soon be well

I am just off to convocation in London so forgive me.

Yours very sincerely,
T. C. Fry
